Juniata Launches $30 Million Campaign

Right: The kiosks representing science, international studies, education, special traditions, as well as Juniata's commitment to education beyond the classroom and its unique sense of community, were on display during the campaign launch on October 9. The kiosks bring the campus alive through colorful photography and familiar sounds of campus.

Juniata College officially launched the largest fund raising campaign in its 117-year history as part of Homecoming festivities on October 9. The launch included a huge picnic festival, the afternoon performance of the band "Whiskers and Lace," inspirational speeches, and entertainers roving through the crowd.

The kick-off of the $30 million campaign, titled "Transformations: The Campaign for Juniata," begins a series of strategies designed to position the liberal arts college among the finest institutions of higher learning in the nation.

The first steps in this long range process include raising $9 million for endowment funds, $8 million for facilities and campus modernization, $9 million for educational program funds, and $4 million for The Juniata Fund, the college's concurrent fund drive for annual giving. The $30 million campaign will last three years, through June 1996.

"Juniata College transforms lives," said Juniata President Robert W. Neff. "To all of us for whom this educational community is so special, it is no mystery why students find their lives transformed by their experiences here. We have sought to sustain an educational community here in Huntingdon that adheres to the highest standards of teaching and learning.

"Now we face a new challenge: to ensure for future generations of students access to Juniata and the kinds of experiences that prepare them for a world far different from the world we faced even five years ago," he said.

"To meet that challenge, we must sustain and invigorate the special character of this institution through new investments in students, faculty, facilities and programs. As a first step, we are launching The Transformations Campaign. If Juniata is to realize its potential to transform the lives of future generations of students, then we must broaden our horizons."

According to Neff, nothing is more central to the transformation of student lives at Juniata than building the college's endowment. "Income generated from endowment not only enables the college to provide today's students with a quality education," he said, "it insures that tomorrow's students will have access to an educational experience enriched and revitalized over time."

Through the campaign, the college seeks $9 million in endowment for: student scholarships ($5 million), educational programs ($2.5 million) and teaching support ($1.5 million).

Regarding the classrooms, labs and residence halls, the president noted a need to modernize facilities. In addition, he noted select campus improvement projects to be undertaken to enhance the quality of academic and social life.

The Transformations Campaign has a goal of $8 million for facilities and campus modernization including residence hall improvements ($3 million), enhanced instructional technology ($4 million), and improvements to the campus environment ($1 million).

Juniata must also secure the resources necessary to expand opportunities for teaching and learning on campus, Neff said. "This will allow more students to participate in faculty-sponsored research projects and will fund the development of new interdisciplinary programs and courses," he said.

Juniata seeks $9 million for immediate program enhancement and special project development funds in academic programs ($3 million), faculty-student scholarship ($2 million), funds for the arts, athletics, the library and student services ($1 million), and funding for school and community outreach programs ($3 million).

The final component to The Transformations Campaign is the $4 million goal for The Juniata Fund. According to President Neff, gifts to The Juniata Fund will be used primarily to underwrite scholarships to ensure access for students. At the same time, donors who wish to support academic departments, promote the Division III philosophy of athletics, or designate funds for other purposes are free to do so through their gifts to The Juniata Fund.

"Juniata College faces a formidable challenge if we are to become a model of higher education for the 21st century," stated Neff.

"Before the next century, this institution must secure the resources to support not only its historical strengths in the sciences, education, business and other fields," he noted, "but its emerging programs of distinction in areas such as international, environmental, and peace and conflict studies. These programs reflect the concerns and challenges of a changing world."

"If Juniata is to realize its potential to transform the lives of future generations of students," the president concluded, "then we must broaden our horizons. We will accomplish the goals of The Transformations Campaign by seeking the support of our alumni, community members and friends, as well as corporations and foundations."

President Neff added, "Juniata's role as a liberal arts college is vital. The liberal arts college has never played a more significant role than it will as we enter the next century. The maturation of the mind, the transformation of lives, the transformation of our community, the transformation of this nation, the transformation of the world — this is our life's work."

Robert Wagoner '53, campaign chairman and trustee, encouraged alumni and friends of the college to take an active role in the campaign. "Our goal for the Juniata family is $30 million to be accomplished over the next three years. This goal is imperative, realistic, achievable, and at the same time challenging," he said.

"To attain excellence, you must risk more than others think safe, care for your Juniata family more than others think wise, and dream for its future more than others think practical. We need you...I challenge you to help us exceed our goal, and God bless your love for this institution," he said.

Following the speeches, a fireworks display symbolically launched the campaign. The show featured 250 bomb shells, ranging from 3' to 8', creating effects as high as 800 ft. in the air. The skies above The Cloister and Oller Hall were filled with brilliant and colorful sights and sounds for nearly 25 minutes.

The day concluded with the Artist Series performance of "Hamlet" by the Actors of the London Stage, and a match between Juniata's nationally ranked women's volleyball team and the Indiana University of Pennsylvania volleyball team. ■

Three Trustees Provide Initial Thrust for Campaign

Sunderland's Gift Tops $1 Million

Three trustees, whose combined gift commitments exceed $2 million, have provided the initial thrust for Juniata's Transformations Campaign.

Klare Sunderland, chairman of the Juniata College Board of Trustees and president of Sun Enterprises, Inc. of Camp Hill, Pa., and his wife Lea, have made a $1.1 million commitment to The Transformations Campaign. The gift represents the single largest gift commitment ever made by an individual to Juniata College.

The Sunderlands have earmarked their commitment for Juniata's endowment fund and the Elizabeth E. Baker Professorship in Peace and Conflict Studies.

In addition to the Sunderland gift, Robert E. Wagoner, and his wife Donna, and Dale W. Detwiler and his wife Virginia, have made campaign pledges of $500,000. Wagoner is chairman of The Transformations Campaign and retired president of Brissenden, McFarland, Wagoner and Fuccella, Inc., an executive search firm headquartered in Stamford, Conn. Detwiler is a Juniata trustee and former president and board chairman of New Enterprise Stone and Lime Company.

The Wagoners have designated their gift for scholarship support for students from Somerset and Cambria Counties, for support of Juniata's Raystown Environmental Field Station, and for The Juniata Fund.

The Detwilers have designated their gift to establish the Dale and Virginia Detwiler Endowed Professorship in Education, The Dale and Virginia Detwiler Endowed Scholarship, two annual scholarships, and support for The Juniata Fund.

"The gift commitments by these loyal and dedicated members of our community provide strong momentum as we move into The Transformations Campaign," said Robert W. Neff, president of the college.

"As we move forward with The Transformations Campaign we will see alumni, trustees and friends of the college from all parts of the country step up to make campaign commitments that stretch beyond previous gift levels," Neff stated. "These gifts will be their emphatic statement that they believe in this college, they value the education they received here, and they recognize the importance of Juniata."

One of Central Pennsylvania's leading businessmen and civic leaders, Klare Sunderland has gained a reputation for his integrity and dynamic business style. His business interests lie primarily in the automotive industry.

Mr. Sunderland is president of Sun Motor Cars, Inc., an exclusive Harrisburg area Mercedes Benz dealership; Mansun North, Inc., a luxury motor coach line serving Central Pennsylvania; and Sun Investments, an equity investment firm dealing in automotive dealerships and other businesses. He also is a developer of real estate in Central Pennsylvania and Stone Harbor, New Jersey.

Since his graduation from Juniata in 1956, Mr. Sunderland has devoted much time to his alma mater. He served as chairman of Juniata's National Alumni Campaign for the $10 million "Margin of Difference" campaign during the decade of the '70s and in 1989 he was honored by Juniata as the recipient of the prestigious Alumni Service Award.

Mr. Sunderland has been a member of Juniata's board since 1970 and moved into the chair position in 1991. He served as president of Juniata's Central Pennsylvania Alumni Club, general chairman of the Knox Stadium Project, and trustee gifts chairman of the Kennedy Sports+Recreation Center phase of the Century II Campaign, which raised in excess of $20 million in the decade of the '80s.

The Sunderland children include Debra K. (Sunderland) Ritchey, Donna K. (Sunderland) Benson, and Daniel K. Sunderland, a member of the class of 1988.

Robert Wagoner recently retired as president of Brissenden, McFarland, Wagoner and Fuccella, Inc., an executive search consulting firm he helped found in 1981. He had previously served as vice president of Heidrick and Struggles, one of the top four international management consulting firms.

A 1953 graduate of Juniata College, Mr. Wagoner has served his alma mater as a member of the President's Development Council and the Alumni Council. He served as a Class Fund Agent from 1979 to 1986. Mr. Wagoner served as an alumni representative to the Board of Trustees from 1982 to 1985, at which time he was elected to regular board membership.

The Wagoner's have three children, Robert L. Wagoner, Marcy J. Wagoner, who is a member of the Class of 1977, and Bruce D. Wagoner.

Dale Detwiler has been a member of the Juniata Board of Trustees since 1949. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Juniata in 1983.

Mr. Detwiler served as chairman of New Enterprise Stone and Lime Company, where he also held positions of president and vice president. Mr. Detwiler served as a school director for 20 years and was director of Central Counties Bank for 40 years, director of Nason Hospital for 26 years, director and past president of Associated Pennsylvania Constructors, past president of the Roaring Spring Rotary Club, and a member of the General Board of the Church of the Brethren.

Mr. Detwiler served Juniata as chairman of the trustee gifts committee of the Century II Campaign in 1984. He has been a member of Juniata's Heritage Society since 1990 and served on the Campaign Task Force for the Transformations Campaign from 1990 to 1992. The Detwiler's children include Shirley (Detwiler) Lingenfelter, a member of the class of 1955, Charlotte L. (Detwiler) Clark, also a member of the class of 1955, Donald L. Detwiler, a member of the class of 1964, Nancy Roop Davis Peters, a member of the class of 1965, Amy E. Roop and Charles M. Roop III. ■

Juniata's College Advancement Team Ready for Challenge of Transformations Campaign

Now that Juniata College has begun its three-year, $30 million Transformations Campaign, the college advancement staff has embarked on a period of intense fund raising activity. The challenge of securing the support needed to take Juniata into the next century is powerful motivation.

"We have completed a year of introspection and preparation for this campaign," Juniata President Robert W. Neff said. "The vital support needed to move Juniata College forward has never been stronger. We are already seeing exciting and substantial changes in campus facilities, campus computer systems, academic programs and administrative structure."

"The completion of the reorganization in the Office of College Advancement is an example of Juniata's commitment to its future. We are now in position operationally to act on emerging opportunities and challenges."

Dr. Neff, Donald D. Moyer, vice president for college advancement, and the development staff will work to secure campaign gifts from alumni, friends, local businesses, corporations and foundations.

Moyer, who came to Juniata in 1991, is the former national director of economic development for KPMG Peat Marwick Management Consultants in San Francisco. Ken Dudzik, Juniata's director of development and alumni relations, will manage the operations of the campaign. He joined the college's administration in 1992 after serving in positions at Western Maryland College, Dickinson College and Brown University.

"We are fortunate to have a dedicated college advancement team," Dudzik said. "The campaign we are undertaking, however, requires assistance from all areas of the college. We are proud of the commitment the entire institution has made to this effort."

Susan McLaughlin, associate director of development - major gifts, and Ron Wywick, associate director of development - planned gifts, will serve as members of the campaign solicitation team. Kevin McCullen, associate vice president for college advancement, will continue to concentrate his efforts toward grant-writing and corporate, government and foundation giving.

McLaughlin recently joined the Juniata administration after spending the past three years on the development staff at Penn State University, School of Agricultural Sciences. Wywick, who came to Juniata a year ago, served on the planned giving staff in the southeast region for the Church of the Brethren General Board from 1987-92. McCullen, a member of the Juniata administration since 1980, joined the college's advancement office in 1985.

David McCarty, associate director of development-The Juniata Fund, and Nancy Hess, assistant director of development-The Juniata Fund, will be charged with coordinating and conducting the college's national annual giving program. The college hopes to secure nearly $1 million per year for The Juniata Fund during The Transformations Campaign.

McCarty recently arrived at Juniata after serving as director of development for the Friends United Meeting in Richmond, Indiana, from 1989-93. Hess has been a member of the college's development staff since her graduation from Juniata in May 1992.

"While we have already begun to see many developments taking place at Juniata College," Dr. Neff said, "we must understand that Juniata's transformation is work in progress. With continued help and support, we can bring the whole vision of transformation into reality within the coming decade. I am confident our college advancement team is up to the challenge." ■

- 2,000 pieces of pizza
- 300 lbs. of french fries
- 1100 cupcakes
- 1200 funnel cakes
- 40 lbs. of Hershey kisses

The menu was representative of the 18 national sights selected for regional campaign kickoff events.

Kenneth Crosby Memorial Endowment Serves as Paradigm

Dr. Kenneth W. Crosby

In recognition and appreciation of the influence that Ken Crosby has had upon his life, Del McQuaide '58, joined by his wife Barbara Walls McQuaide '59, has established a challenge grant to fund the "Kenneth Crosby Memorial Endowment." This endowed fund will provide the resources for a scholarship to a Juniata College upperclass student majoring in history or political science, as well as providing academic program support for these departments.

Great teachers have always been a hallmark of the Juniata experience. Their influence has transformed the lives of their students in both significant and subtle ways. In so many instances, the successful careers of Juniata graduates can be directly attributed to the talent of these teachers that have awakened young minds to new ideas and possibilities.

"History as taught by Ken Crosby was an experience that extended beyond the classroom. For four years, I was privileged to benefit from his passion for teaching and his infectious enthusiasm for current issues on campus, and in the broader political world," McQuaide said.

"While his history classes were always lively and exciting, his encouragement meant a lot too, spurring my interest in student government, debate and finally, the legal profession. Looking back, Ken Crosby had a remarkable influence on the lives of many students. In my case, I know my life would have been very different without Juniata and professors like Ken Crosby," he added.

Dr. Kenneth W. Crosby (1914-1990) was a Juniata College professor of history for thirty-two years. While at Juniata, he served as History Department chair from 1953 until his retirement in 1980. He was honored as the first Beachley Distinguished Professor in 1963 and was named to the W. Newton & Hazel A. Long Professorship in History in 1976. Dr. Crosby is remembered by the Juniata community as teacher, scholar, advisor, pastor and friend.

In The Transformations Campaign, an endowed scholarship may be established and named with a gift of $25,000 or more.

"It's difficult to secure gifts for an amorphous term like endowment. But when we become very specific about what endowment can be used for, such as the Kenneth Crosby Memorial Endowment, it becomes much more meaningful and personal for people. We hope that the gift provided by the McQuaides will serve as a paradigm for others who would like to honor beloved Juniata teachers," said Ken Dudzik, director of development and alumni relations. ■

Want to Make a Campaign Gift? Consider The Juniata Fund...

Year after year, a growing number of alumni have contributed generously to Juniata's annual support fund. As part of The Transformations Campaign, the College is asking alumni and friends to renew and strengthen their commitment of support.

For many years, gifts to Juniata's annual support fund were sought mainly to supplement student financial aid. Recently renamed the Juniata Fund, the annual giving program at Juniata continues to feature an overriding priority of scholarship assistance to ensure access for students.

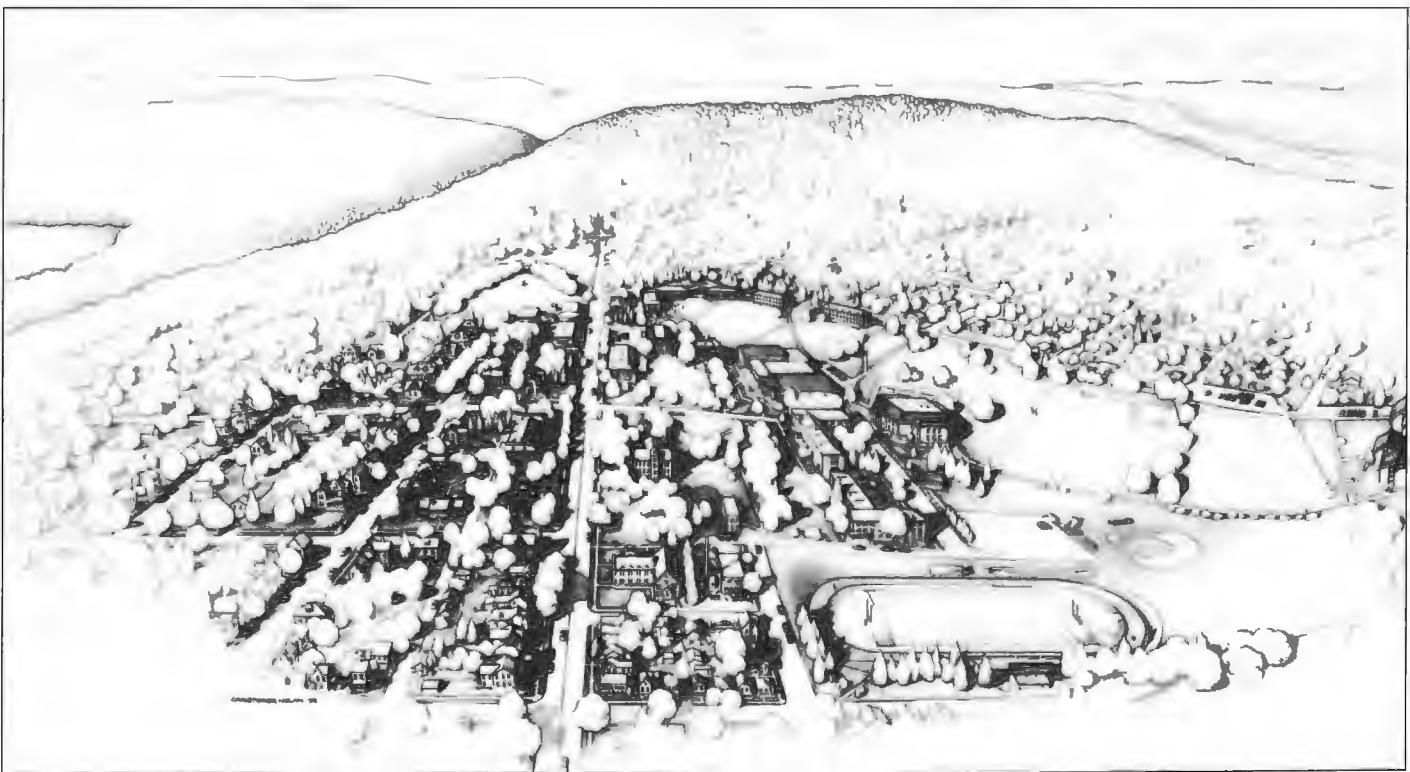

The Juniata Fund, however, now offers more comprehensive support to the College. Donors who wish to support specific academic departments, student services, athletics or Beegly Library may designate their gifts to any of these worthy programs as well.

"These changes create a Juniata Fund where donors will find a number of places to give, and in all cases add to the reputation of excellence that Juniata College enjoys," said David C. McCarty, associate director of development. "Annual support will play a vital role in defraying the variety of costs associated with providing students a first-rate liberal arts education."

Juniata has seen an increase in annual giving from $225,326 during the 1983-84 fiscal year to last year's record total, $900,770. That nearly 300 percent jump is an encouraging trend as the college begins its effort to raise $4 million through The Juniata Fund as part of the $30 million Transformations Campaign.

It is the generosity of alumni and friends such as Elma '50 and Howard Heckler that has enabled Juniata to see steady increases in annual fund totals. The Hecklers have chosen to make their campaign gift to the Juniata Fund, committing $25,000 a year for three years. Their gift recognizes the vitality and importance of The Juniata Fund as part of the campaign.

"In order to achieve our goals, The Juniata Fund will need to realize an increase of more than 20 percent during the course of the campaign," said Juniata President Robert W. Neff. "By making the commitment to expand gifts to the annual fund, every member of the Juniata community can become an integral part of Transformations. In the process, The Juniata Fund, with student scholarship aid as its cornerstone, can provide vital comprehensive support to the College." ■

The first International Seminar on Arms Control and Disarmament was held September 13 at the Juniata College Conference Center located in Williamsburg, Pa. The two week program, sponsored by Juniata College, the United Nations, and the International Association of University Presidents, marked the first time the U.N. joined forces with an educational institution to sponsor a seminar on disarmament issues.

"The seminar gave us an opportunity to begin building regional networks of scholars who are interested in arms control and demilitarization and who have had an opportunity to study these issues with international leaders in the field," said Dr. Andrew Murray, director of the Baker Peace Institute. "It is a first step in building cultural and academic legitimacy for arms control and disarmament education."

The cooperative venture between the United Nations and Juniata's Baker Institute will extend over the next five years. Each year the seminar participants will be from a different region of the world. Next year's seminar is scheduled to bring participants from the region of South Africa.

The seminars will be targeted primarily at university scholars from developing nations who will teach the next generation of their countries' leaders. The seminars will also be opened to government officials, as appropriate.

The faculty for the first seminar included Pierce S. Corden, chief of the European Security Negotiations Division of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency; Major-General Indar Rikhye, who has led U.N. peacekeeping missions in the Congo, West Iran, Yemen and Gaza; Virginia S.I. Gamba, program officer on Peace and International Cooperation, John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation; and Roger Fisher, director of the Harvard Negotiation Project and author of "Getting to Yes: Negotiating Agreement without Giving In."

"The goal for the seminar was to begin building a constituency for arms control and disarmament — both in government circles and among the citizenry — in developing nations," said Prvoslav Davinic, director of the United Nations Office for Disarmament Affairs and a member of the faculty for the seminars.

The first seminar examined both issues specific to Latin America and broader concerns, including the theory and practice of agreement building; the history, theory and application of nonviolent sanctions; the role of force in peacemaking and peacekeeping; regional and national efforts at disarmament and demilitarization; and various U.N. arms control initiatives. ■

Peace and Conflict Studies Program Celebrates Twenty Years

Forty-five people attended a banquet to celebrate 20 years of "working for peace" at Juniata College on Friday, October 8. The banquet, attended by faculty, students, alumni and supporters of the Peace and Conflict Studies program at Juniata, commemorated the work of the past two decades.

A special award was presented to Dr. Robert P. Zimmerer, professor of biology, emeritus, by Dr. Andrew Murray, director of the Baker Institute for Peace and Conflict Studies. Zimmerer was recognized for his 15 years of service to the Peace and Conflict Studies program at Juniata College.

"Bob Zimmerer was honored for 15 years of service on the PACS committee and for his guidance in assuring that students would acquire an education useful for development in their professional lives," Murray said.

"Bob emphasized the importance of vocational advising and practical internship experiences for students in the PACS program," he added.

Approximately 200 students are enrolled in one of several Peace and Conflict Studies courses offered each year. The PACS program is taught through eight departments on campus and also includes a strong non-departmental program of courses on conflict resolution and the history and practice of non-violence. Since its inception in 1973 the PACS program at Juniata has impacted hundreds of Juniata students.

Juniata's ESL Program Is A Success

BY ANNE DAVIS '94

Ever since Kaai Ohtsuka was 7 years-old she dreamed of coming to the United States. This summer her dream became a reality when she was one of the fourteen students from Bunri College in Tokyo who participated in an intensive English as a Second Language program at Juniata College.

Dr. Kim Richardson, director of international programs said, "This program showed a group of Japanese students the best America has to offer. They saw the way most Americans work and play. They saw an America that has picnics and pool parties, an America that goes to church on Sunday; and makes room in its homes and hearts for young people, they have never met with limited proficiency in English. Through their homestays the Japanese students were able to participate in the real life experiences of the American family. It was a picture of this country that doesn't fit the stereotypes of a crime-filled, violent, amoral society. It was an America to balance the media images that had formed their impression of America."

The students were in the U.S. for almost one month. Classes in the English language, supported by the language lab, and in keyboarding, took approximately five hours of each day. Takako Ueno, one of the students said about the program, "When I came here, I didn't speak English at all. Then I really got it. It is one thing to know the grammar of a language, it is quite another to speak it well."

Kaai Ohtsuka

In addition to this accelerated program, these students toured Washington D.C. and Niagara Falls and enjoyed activities such as horseback riding, swimming, shopping, bowling, and canoeing. They also visited the ELCO Corporation, and spent time at J.C. Blair Hospital, and the JB Kunz Company observing office procedures. Susan Martin, activities coordinator and keyboard instructor said of the program, "it opened a whole new world to these students."

Dr. Richardson added, "People near these young women will not be able to judge this country on the basis of negative stereotypes quite so easily, because of the experience these women had here. These young women saw a different America and were so moved by that experience it will remain a part of them for their lives. It is impossible to anticipate the ripple effect of this experience."

"I have a strong belief that world peace will be achieved through education; an education that encompasses an understanding of other cultures of the world and one another's languages. With this understanding will come greater tolerance and with tolerance will come peace. Each person who participated in this program contributed to that goal" she concluded.

A banquet wrapped up the program for the students and their host families. Certificates were presented to the emotionally charged group of women. Many tears, laughter and hugs were exchanged as these students reluctantly said goodbye to their American friends.

Editor's Note: Anne Davis is a senior communications student, participating in an internship with the College Communications staff. ■

The students from Bunri College entertained their host families at the farewell banquet on the Juniata campus by singing a selection of songs.

The staff for the Summer ESL Program included (left to right) Rebecca Shue '93, residence counselor; Susan Martin, activities coordinator; Akiyo Miyachi, assistant to the dean of instruction and international education services at Bunri College; Jean Pritchard, summer ESL program director; and Dr. Kim Richardson, director of international programs.

The seminar participants had the opportunity to experience the American workplace firsthand. Here students take a tour of J.C. Blair Hospital.

JACK BARLOW, assistant professor of political science, gave a paper titled "The Federalist on Founding" at the 1993 meeting of the Pennsylvania Political Science Association on April 2.

In May, he served as a judge for the national finals of "We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution," a competition for high school students.

During the 1992-93 academic year, he also served as a panelist for the National Endowment for the Humanities Projects in Libraries and Archives.

Barlow participated in a conference on "Basic Values of Constitutional Democracy," co-sponsored by the Federal Center for Political Education of the Federal Republic of Germany and the Center for Civic Education, held in Herrsching/Ammersee, Germany, on October 3-8.

ARNOLD TILDEN, vice president for educational planning and student services, has successfully completed the National Board of Certified Counselors certification process and is now a national certified counselor, or NCC. The National Board of Certified Counselors is the recognized credentialing agency for professional counselors.

DONNA COLEMAN, associate professor of music, recorded Daniel Perlongo's (Indiana University of Pa.) Piano Concerto with the Radio Orchestra of Bratislava over the summer. The recording will be released on compact disc worldwide in 1994 on the Master Musician's Collective series label (affiliated with Vienna Modern Masters).

Fanfare magazine published a review of Coleman's newest Etcetera compact disc, Charles Ives: Piano Sonata No. 1 (available at the bookstore), in which James H. North declares the performance "grand and sweeping, strong and confident, filled with charm and overflowing with joy. It immediately becomes my preferred version."

DONALD DURNBAUGH, college archivist, attended a meeting of experts on German-American studies, held at the Max Kade Institute at the University of Wisconsin/Madison on September 9-12. He represented the field of religious studies in seeking a refined definition of the field and academic approaches to it.

Durnbaugh presented scholarly papers at two recent conferences. The first was on the contemporary relevance of Anabaptism at a conference on this theme held at Bridgewater College in Virginia, from September 29 - October 2. The second was on the Separatist Society of Zoar at a conference held in New Harmony, Indiana, on October 14-17. He serves on the national board of the Communal Studies Association which sponsored the international conference.

His recent article, "Ernst H. Correll and Juniata College" was published in the Mennonite Quarterly Review (October, 1993).

DALE WAMPLER, associate dean of academic affairs and director of the academic computer center, attended a two-week course on Object Oriented Programming with C++ at the University of Central Oklahoma on August 1-13. He is a visiting scholar at the University of Texas at Austin for the 1993-94 academic year.

DR. KEITH MANN, assistant professor of geology, conducted field-based research during June and July on the rocks of central Pennsylvania with Dr. Bill Kirchgasser (SUNY Potsdam). This project entails using extinct organisms (ammonites and conodonts) to correlate (temporally) the sedimentary rocks of central Pennsylvania with the rocks of New York. Kate Bucklen, a JC student, is also working on this project. Keith hosted several other geologists from New York (Carleton Brett, The University of Rochester and Gorden Baird, SUNY Fredonia) during July. Also in July, he traveled to New York to conduct a field check of Susannah Schneider's senior research project.

The Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists the largest international society of sedimentary geologists, recently requested that Dr. Mann help organize a Graphic Correlation Research Conference. This conference will attract an international audience from both the industrial and academic communities.

In September, Dr. Mann attended a field trip in central Pennsylvania for "recently hired sedimentary geologists of Pennsylvania Colleges and Universities" hosted by Bucknell University.

JAY BUCHANAN, director of counseling services, had an article titled "Resolutions: They're not just for New Year's" in the October, 1993 issue of The Rotarian. The publication is the official magazine of Rotary International and has a world-wide circulation of over one million.

Along with Dr. Timothy Ring, a licensed psychologist in private practice in Reading, Buchanan made two invited presentations on male socialization and mens' issues at Kutztown University on October 20, 1993.

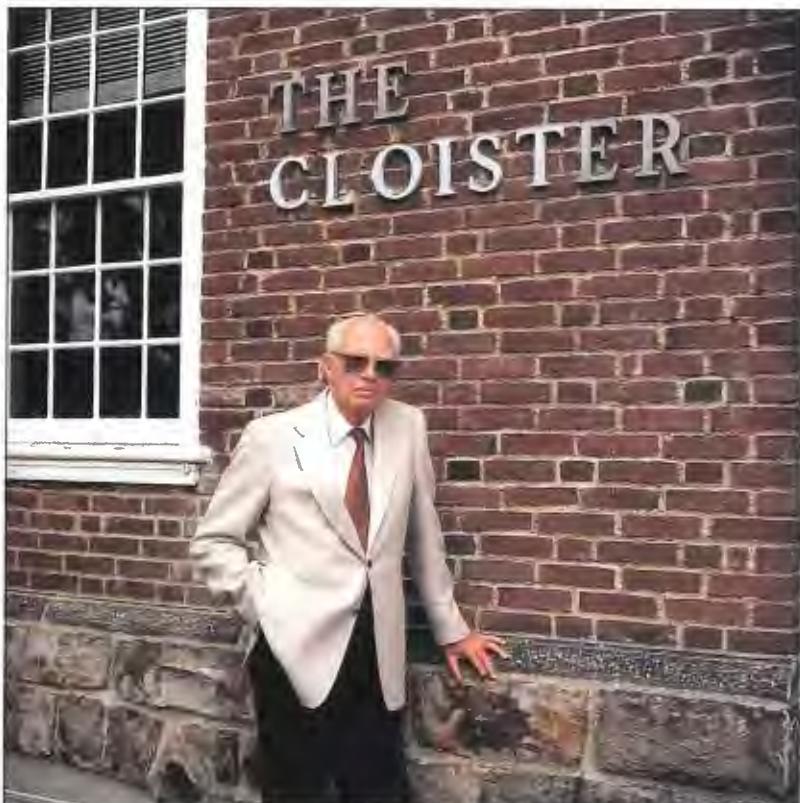

Over the summer, Buchanan was a keynote speaker at two conferences: June 15 at Lehigh University for the Middle Atlantic Placement Association's (MAPA) Support Staff Workshop and on June 25 in State College for the 22nd annual conference of the Pupil Transportation Association of Pennsylvania. On both occasions the topic was "Managing Change and Coping with Stress."

DONNA MURPHY, assistant professor of education, represented the Education Department at the Pennsylvania Department of Education's public hearings regarding proposed changes to state teacher certification standards. She presented extensive testimony about the implications of the proposed changes for special education certification in Pennsylvania. Her testimony was in part a follow-up to research she had undertaken in 1991 and 1992 regarding the feasibility of establishing a special education teacher certification program at Juniata. It was also a response to the national "inclusion" movement in the public schools, about which she has two manuscripts in progress.

JOSÉ NIETO, professor of religion and history, has edited and written the introduction to "Valdés' Two Catechisms: Dialogue on Christian Doctrine & Christian Instruction for Children." This second enlarged edition, available from Coronado Press, also contains a new essay on "The Changing Image of Valdés in Recent Historiography (1970-1990)."

After 61 Years of Residence Hall Life, HB Moves Out

This fall, Harold Brumbaugh '33 moved out of the residence halls at Juniata after 61 years.

Harold B. Brumbaugh moved into the residence halls at Juniata College in 1929 as a student and then again in 1936 as an employee. He moved out September 20, 1993. The man who has come to be known as "Mr. Juniata" has relocated to Westminster Woods, a 46-acre woodland retirement community one mile from the Juniata campus.

"I have devoted my life to this college and the Huntingdon community," Harold said.

The 82-year-old is a 1933 graduate of Juniata and, after working as a teacher and principal in the Woodbury area for three years, he became an assistant to Juniata College President Charles C. Ellis in 1936. He was placed in charge of public relations, alumni relations and fundraising.

"At that time there were only 500 students and there wasn't really a student recruitment office," Harold said. "The president and his secretary handled admissions."

Brumbaugh moved into an apartment in Cloister Hall on campus in 1936, staying there for 32 years before moving to an apartment in Terrace Hall in 1968. He's been living there since.

"I just didn't want to leave," said Harold. He retired in 1976, but has continued to work in the Alumni Relations Office for the past 17 years.

"I stayed here because of a strong sense of allegiance to Juniata College and I continued to live in the residence hall because I enjoy being around the students. They help keep the spark inside me."

Many of the students feel the same way about Brumbaugh.

"It makes you feel special because you're living near somebody who really believes in this school," said Jessica C. Lieb, a senior majoring in pre-physical therapy from Ebensburg, Pa. "He is always looking out for the students."

"We're very fortunate to have Harold Brumbaugh as part of our campus community," said Robert W. Neff, president of Juniata College. "He has dedicated his life to this school, its students and our alumni. His presence on campus has certainly touched the lives of many of the students."

Brumbaugh — more commonly known as "H.B." to the students, staff and faculty — is one of the most popular people on campus and is a regular at sporting events, festivals and campus programs.

"You feel privileged when 'H.B.' stops by to watch your sports team play or to check out an art exhibit or a play," said Lieb.

Brumbaugh still travels around the world meeting with alumni. For many of them, he is a link between the past and the present.

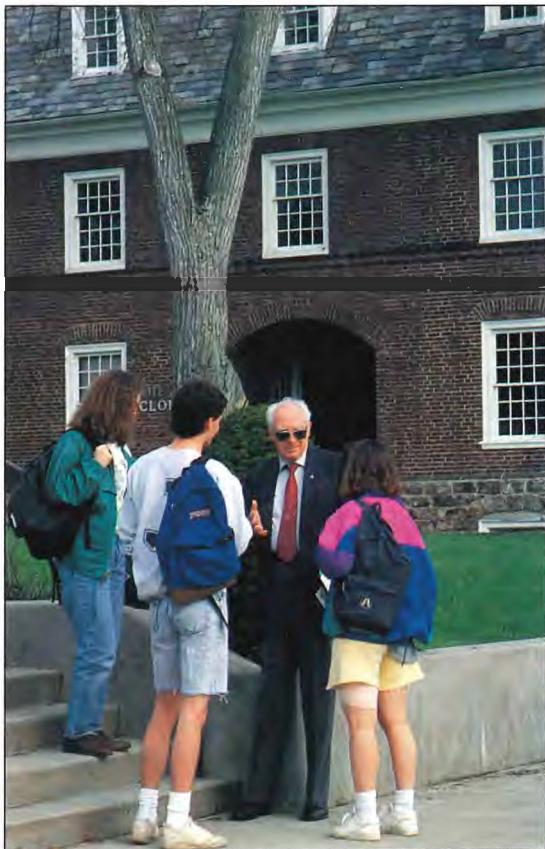

"I do like to tell stories about Juniata," Harold reflected. "It gives students a sense of the college's history and keeps our alumni aware of how Juniata is changing."

He can recall in vivid detail the great freshmen and sophomore snowball fights outside Cloister Hall, a tradition started by returning veterans of World War II; the football team's trip to the Tangerine Bowl in 1956; past presidents and professors; as well as the history behind every building on campus.

After 61 years of living on campus, Brumbaugh surprised the college population when he announced he was moving to the Westminster Woods Retirement Community.

"It wasn't an easy decision to make," said Harold. "Although I will continue to work with the Alumni Relations Office, this was a very hard step to take. I have mixed feelings about moving out. However, I thought this would be a good time to make the move."

Westminster Woods is a not-for-profit continuing care retirement community offering different levels of care and living arrangements depending on the needs of the residents. Westminster Woods is operated by the Presbyterian Homes, which sponsors similar retirement communities in Orbisonia, Hollidaysburg and Philipsburg. ■

From dorm to retirement home

Employee leaves campus life

Harold Brumbaugh today ends his history-making stint as the longest dormitory dweller at Juniata College in Huntingdon, Pa., when he moves from campus to a retirement community one mile away.

"I have been a longtime, continuous believer in the college," says Brumbaugh, 82, a 1933 Juniata graduate. "Sometimes I thought I was lacking ambition and get-up-and-go by not venturing out to something else. But I was always quite satisfied with what I was doing."

After graduating from Juniata, Brumbaugh worked as a teacher and principal in Bedford County, Pa. He returned to Juniata in 1936 to become an assistant to then-President Charles C. Ellis. He moved to an apartment in Cloister Hall, staying there 32 years as his positions changed to alumni secretary, publicist, admissions officer, archivist, museum curator, development director and vice president for college relations.

Known as H.B., Brumbaugh moved in 1968 to Terrace Hall, from where he will move today. Even though he retired in 1976, Brumbaugh has faithfully attended nearly every sporting event, theater production, concert and lecture on campus for 57 years.

"Living on campus, I had to be pliable and adjustable to change or I'd never have stayed. I would have pulled out," he says. The biggest change in campus life: the move "from strict rules and regulations to freedom and liberty, independent students."

DISTINGUISHED ADMINISTRATOR

KEVIN MCCULLEN, associate vice president for college advancement, is the recipient of 1993 Lucy M. Calhoun Award for Distinguished Administrative Performance at Juniata College. McCullen was presented the award by President Robert W. Neff during a special ceremony in Founders Hall in August.

McCullen came to Juniata in 1980 as director of institutional planning and research. He was named assistant to the president for planning and research in July 1983. McCullen was appointed director of college advancement in 1985, and director of development in 1987. He began his current position in 1991.

Dr. Neff praised McCullen's contributions in a number of areas. "Kevin has been a leader for his department, for the college, in the community, and in his church," Dr. Neff said.

"Although not an alumnus, he is a well-known supporter of the entire Juniata community and an active member of Huntingdon County Business and Industry. Kevin also serves as the chair of the building project for a new Catholic Church in the Huntingdon parish. Since he arrived in 1980, Kevin McCullen has been a respected member of our Juniata community."

The Lucy M. Calhoun Award was established in 1992 through an endowment provided by Mr. Ted J. Long. It is presented annually to an individual who has completed three or more years of continuous service to Juniata as an administrative employee. The award includes a cash prize, a framed citation, and the inscription of the recipient's name on an award plaque displayed in Founders Hall. ■

NEW FACULTY PUBLICATION

A new and exciting publication, titled Juniata Voices, has been created by members of the faculty at Juniata College. The first volume of Juniata Voices features a series of five lively and well-attended lectures presented by DR. DAVID SOWELL, associate professor of history at Juniata College.

Titled "Contact, Conquest and Consequences," the lecture series was originally presented during the fall of 1992 in commemoration of the Quincentennial of 1492. In these essays, Dr. Sowell presents a picture of the European conquest that is very different from the one most readers of traditional American history have come to expect. Writing what is known as "revisionist history," Dr. Sowell critiques the actions of European conquerors rather than glorifying their exploits, he questions their justifications for conquest rather than seeing conquest as "progress" or the inevitable outcome of European destiny, and he attempts to understand the meanings and effects of conquest through the eyes of the Amerindians.

This series of publications continues the tradition of Juniata College, always striving to provide an environment conducive to rigorous intellectual exchange and discovery, supplementing the existing exchange with a permanent record of selected campus presentations by members

vice president and dean of academic affairs.

"The purpose of this new scholarly journal is to extend the bounds of academic discussion, to raise anew certain challenging questions posed within and beyond the classroom, to stimulate community thought, to suggest new relationships, and to redefine traditional issues in the light of new knowledge and new interpretations," said Juniata College President Robert Neff.

"In short, Juniata Voices is intended to reach outside the immediate college environment and offer our extended family a chance to share in some of the teaching and learning conversations we have experienced while living and working on the campus. We trust this series of essays will stimulate even more debate, reflection, and discovery, and at the same time carry our Juniata voices far beyond Huntingdon in both space and time," he concluded.

The 94 page booklet, at a cost of $9.95 (plus $2.50 shipping), can be purchased by contacting the Juniata College Bookstore at 814-643-4310 ext. 380. ■

Juniata Hosts NCAA Division III Women's Volleyball Championship

JC Spikers Finish Second

Juniata College's impressive history of women's volleyball added another memorable chapter this fall as the 1993 NCAA Championship semifinals and final came to Huntingdon for the first time. Enthusiastic crowds filled Memorial Gym in the Kennedy Sports+Rec Center for two outstanding nights of volleyball on November 19-20.

The host squad didn't disappoint as Juniata advanced to the national championship match with a 7-15, 15-9, 15-11, 15-9 win over UC San Diego in Friday's semifinals. Coach Larry Bock's squad was denied its first title, however, as top-ranked Washington University of St. Louis used a 15-9, 15-11, 15-11 decision Saturday to earn its third straight Division III Championship.

"Our kids played hard, but faced a very good volleyball team," Bock said following the Washington match. "I'm real pleased with our team. We just ran up against a team that played exceptionally well at the right time."

Juniata and Wash. U. split a pair of regular-season matches. Washington won 3-1 at the Thomas More Invitational, but Juniata took a 3-1 verdict in Huntingdon. The latter decision ended Washington's NCAA record 59-match winning streak. The Bears closed the campaign at 44-2 with their only Division III loss being the Juniata setback.

Juniata, which finished 42-4 overall, came from behind in the UCSD semifinal match thanks to a strong outside attack. Senior Nicki Firestone made a tournament-high 34 kills in the semifinal win as junior Heather Blough recorded 72 assists. Junior Christy Orndorff had 23 digs versus UCSD.

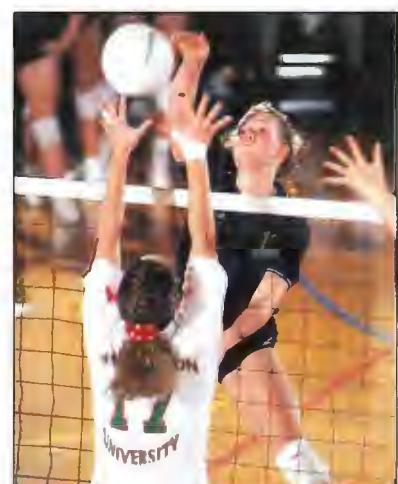

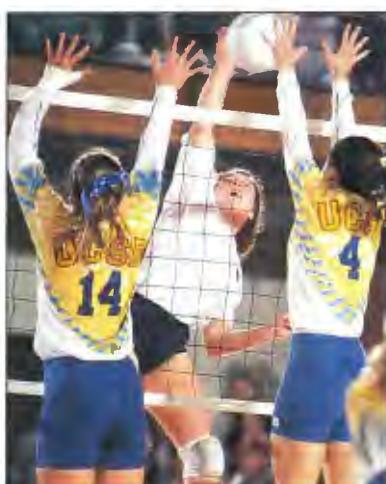

Firestone had 25 kills in the Wash. U. match, but Juniata saw its school-record 52-match home winning streak end. Blough dished out 44 assists as both she and Firestone earned all-tournament honors.

Blough, Firestone and Orndorff were named as first-team AVCA All-America picks this season. Bock was also recognized as the AVCA Division III "Coach of the Year." The official announcements came at the tournament banquet on Thursday, Nov. 18, in the Ellis Ballroom.

"It's hard to compare one Juniata team to another," Bock said about his 1993 squad. "This group is different, though. They've been on a mission for a while now. I don't think they were going to settle for anything less than this."

Juniata, which was runner-up to UC San Diego in the first NCAA Division III tournament in 1981, finished in the national top two for the second time in 10 semifinal appearances. Bock's team placed third in 1985, 1988, 1989 and 1991.

The Juniata roster will lose five seniors to graduation: co-captains Firestone and Missy Glass along with Danielle Bush, Cindy Molloy and Jill Seelye. Ten letterwinners should return, however, from a team that posted the second-best winning percentage in school history (.913). ■

Exchange Student Captures Division III Rolex/ITA Title

Juniata College's Anne-Valerie Horvil, an exchange student from Condette, France, lost in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2, to Laura Nhavene of Tyler Junior College in the women's singles final of the Rolex/ITA National Small College Championships, hosted by the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond, Oklahoma on Oct. 28-31.

Horvil, who won the Northeast regional title in September, swept three matches to win the NCAA Division III bracket of the Rolex/ITA Tournament. She defeated NCAA Division II champ Stacy Moss of Rollins College, 6-2, 6-2, to advance to the tourney's "Super Bowl Championship" match.

Student-athlete Anne-Valerie Horvil of Condette, France.

According to Juniata College athletic director Bill Berrier, tournament organizers said that Horvil is the first NCAA Division III player in recent years to advance to the overall small college women's singles final match. The champions from NCAA Divisions II and III, NAIA and Junior College brackets advanced to the "Super Bowl Championships."

Horvil went 9-1 in the Rolex tournaments this fall. She posted a 4-0 record in singles play for the Juniata women's tennis team, coached by Ray Pfrogner. Horvil is an exchange student at Juniata and is concentrating her studies with the Department of Economics and Business Administration. ■

Mascot Committee Formed

A group comprised of alumni, students, faculty and staff has been appointed to review the issue of the Indian mascot on the Juniata College campus. The committee is chaired by the Honorable Charles C. Brown, Jr. '59, a member of the Board of Trustees. Other members of the committee include: Stacy Korich '94; John Guyer '94; Fay

Glosenger, professor of education; Susan Barker '83; Christopher Umble '74, national alumni council president; William Berrier '60, athletic director; William Huston, associate dean of students; and John Cramer '63, trustee. The committee is expected to bring its recommendations to the Board of Trustees at the annual board meeting in May. ■

Greene-coached teams had winning records in five consecutive seasons from 1953-59, including a 15-6 finish in 1953-54. The .714 winning percentage that season is still the highest for any Juniata squad after World War II.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

August 17, 1993

Dear Editor,

I'm writing in regard to the feature article "The Dream Realized..." in the College Bulletin, summer issue.

I found it an excellent piece that needs to reach a broader audience. In fact, every co-ed that attends Juniata needs to hear the message of "The Dream."

As a graduate from the 70s, we were all aware of the school's affiliation with the "Brethren" but really little more than that and the fact that we knew Juniata used to be "really strict" and didn't allow dancing. The point being that the religious substance and message at that time was little more than seemingly old fashion perfunctory religious rules and regulations.

Maybe that is what things had evolved too, but according to "The Dream Realized" article the original vision based on "the love church and God and commitment to young people" was truly built on a foundation of strong living faith. Since this faith is the very reason for Juniata's being, why is it that the first time I hear about it is twenty years after I graduated?

It seems to me that the "love, commitment, courage and hope of the compelling story of Juniata" is important enough that perhaps it should even be incorporated in the curriculum or at least the orientation.

Students need to know that the vision for Juniata was birthed by men with a strong faith centered in Jesus Christ. I submit that their dream may have been realized but that as focus of Christ diminishes so fades the essential ingredient of the dream.

In a world where Judeo-Christian values are being upstaged and replaced by moral relativism, the solid foundation laid by the builders of Juniata need to be emphasized.

Their story of perseverance and courage is a testimony of the faithfulness of their Lord Jesus Christ. It proves what most Juniata students sense, that Juniata is more than just a "good school" it is something special.

More attention needs to be given to the Christian vision which led to the Juniata Dream. The founders knew this to be essential, effort needs to be made to keep their dream alive.

REUNION '94 WEEKEND — MAY 13, 14 & 15, 1994

Reunion '94 promises to be a spectacular weekend. Once again, alumni graduating in the years 1944, 1949, 1954, 1959, 1964, 1969, 1974, 1979, 1984, and 1989 will reminisce and celebrate with their classmates while enjoying a variety of activities. The fun begins with the traditional class parties on Friday evening, followed by Mountain Day festivities on Saturday and Madrigal Dinner on Saturday Evening. For those classes not familiar with the Madrigal, it is a student dinner that happens in early December. The students come in their best dress, have a wonderful dinner, sing Christmas carols and finish with "The Twelve Days of Christmas" by candlelight. Following the student format each reunion class is assigned a "day of the Twelve Days of Christmas" and participants are asked to portray that using their most active imagination! The weekend is guaranteed to be fun and filled with much to do. Plans are already underway and class coordinators are hard at work planning their strategies to encourage their classmates to return for Reunion '94. If you have ideas for making Reunion '94 even more special, feel free to contact the Alumni Office or your class coordinator.

TAKE ME BACK TO JUNIATA

by Harry Maclay '48

*Take me back to Juniata,
Let me roll away the years;
Let me hear again the laughter
Of my youthful friends and peers.*

*Let me gaze into their faces,
Let me call each one by name;
Take me back to Juniata,
Hallowed place from which I came.*

*Let me stroll familiar pathways
That from Cloisters once I took
On my way to early classes
With my fountain pen and book.*

*Let me go again to Founders,
Hear the voices in its dorm;
Say its halls have not been silenced,
But that all is back to norm.*

*Do ghosts now patrol those hallways,
Keeping watch on upper floors,
In the darkness guarding memories
Up and down the corridors?*

*Let me see again the chapel
That the ground-floor wing once held;
Now 'tis office space, much needed
Since the paperwork has swelled.*

*Let me celebrate this landmark:
Ageless fossil, Founders Hall;
Could it possibly have been here
When the Romans entered Gaul?*

*Take me back to Juniata
In the smoky days of fall;
And as images come tumbling,
Let me pause to view them all.*

*Cheer the Indians on the gridiron,
Hoarsely plead for them to win,
For the game is nearly over
And our margin's paper-thin.*

*Mountain Days were extra special
Who could even now forget
How we so looked forward to them:
We'd not miss them on a bet.*

*Walk with me through Sherwood Forest (In your memory, that is);
Over there — another couple
With her arm entwining his.*

*If there's time, we'll do some jogging,
Heading twice around the Loop;
Then we'll stop at Skip's, exhausted,
For a steaming bowl of soup.*

*Let me in the snows of winter,
Hear the lonely tower bell;
Let me sing the Alma Mater
Till I feel my bosom swell.*

*Let me board the bus at Moore Street,
As I did so long ago,
Just to take a break from studies—
Maybe see a picture show.*

*Take me back to Juniata,
To those post-war years I knew,
When night-watchman Mac reported
Everyone who missed curfew.*

*See him lumbering through the shadows
As he makes his nightly rounds;
Hear the gruffness in his scolding
When, too late, you cross the grounds.*

*Show me once again those barracks
Known to all as just The Lodge;
It was dorm to single veterans,
And a housing place hodge-podge.*

*In The Village married veterans
Lived with spouse and all the kids;
Study hard despite distractions;
Don't let schoolwork hit the skids.*

*Take me back to Juniata
In the scented days of spring;
As the images grow sharper,
Let me smile, remembering.*

*Over there across the campus
Was the ancient, stately gym,
Rules by mannerly Mike Snyder;
Yes, we all remember him.*

*Student Hall has also vanished—
They have taken it away;
But I heard the sounds of classrooms
When I crossed the spot today.*

*Home ec house behind Oneida
Gone, as progress takes its toll;
Yet in memory still it lingers;
Who says buildings have no soul?*

*On to Lions Back in the springtime,
Place our numbers there in line;
Make them big and bold and brazen
So they'll stand the test of time.*

*Take me to the baseball diamond
And the other sporting places;
Let me cheer again the Indians
As they circle all the bases.*

*Take me back to Juniata,
Let me live those precious years
When we studied hard together
To prepare for our careers.*

*Let me see again professors
Who, like landmarks, now are gone;
Let me pay them silent tribute
For the learning they passed on.*

*Guide me next to entertainment
From the stage of Oller Hall—
All its concerts and productions,
From lights out to curtain call.*

*Let me go again to chapel,
Hear again the Chapel Choir,
And the organ's deep resounding
That I always did admire.*

*Let me glimpse my graduation,
Garbed in cap and flowing gown;
After months and years of study,
Education earns its crown.*

*Now with sunset years approaching,
Let me softly close the door,
Guarding mem'ries for the future—
That's what memories are for.*

*Take me back to Juniata,
Let me roll away the years;
Let me hear again the laughter
Of my youthful friends and peers*

*Let me gaze upon their faces,
Let me call each one by name;
Take me back to Juniata;
Hallowed place from which I came.*
